Race director Vern Demmons reports that temperatures at the start were in the low 50s, but cooled down as the race progressed. A moderate headwind confronted the runners over the last few miles. Being only 8 days before Boston prevented some from running this very challenging course. Not Carlton Mendell though, as he ran under 7:30 pace and then ran a fine 3:25 at Boston! It looks as though he is ready to rewrite the record book this fall when he turns 70!
